

The world of Web 2.0

Contributed by Andrew Yager
Wednesday, 12 September 2007
Last Updated Wednesday, 12 September 2007

Well, it's been a while since I've posted - mostly because I've been busy and caught in the exciting new world of Web 2.0. While Web 2.0 means a lot of things to different people, I've started using FaceBook and YouTube, but perhaps more exciting is my recent discovery of a wealth of digital media available online. I've come to love listening to sermons from Mars Hill Church, Seattle. My Church also has sermons available online. I've just finished putting talks from the recent 21C Leadership Conference online, as well as a fantastic lecture from Rev Prof. Andrew McGowan from the Highlands Theological College, Scotland on the way Christians should interact with the world. Very refreshing stuff.